M'ADOO, IN LIBERTY DAY ADDRESS, SAYS AMERICA IS AWAKENING NOW

DIXON QUOTA IS ILLED; COUNTRY STILL LAGGING

DIXON TOWNSHIP BUYS FULL AMOUNT OF LIBERTY LOAN BONDS.

COUNTY HAS BUT 50 PER CENT

Strenuous Drive in County Due for Last Days of This Week's Campaign.

Wake up, Lee County! Wake up, Palmyra and South Dixon. Nachusa and Reynolds, Sublette, Compton, and Viola. Wake up, Business men and farmers, men and women! Is it possible that this country will not do its share in this war? Will not take its share of Liberty Bonds? Is it possible that only three townships in the county—Dixon, Alto and Wyoming will do their full share? When neighboring counties in Illinois are doing their full share, and will write their names on the Roll of Honor of Illinois, which will announce next week the counties which have taken their full allotment! This county's quota is $1,275,000. Subscriptions are for not more than fifty per cent, of this amount, and only three days remain. The desired result can only be accomplished by each township accepting responsibility for its full share. We must not have dollar slackers in Lee County.

Wake up, Lee County! Don't wait for a committee to call on you. Go to any bank at once and subscribe to the limit of your means, for the safety of the nation, and the honor of Lee County. A. P. ARMINGTON, Chairman of Lee County Committee.

Dixon Township's Liberty Loan quota of $385,000 has been filled, and the local committee is rejoicing today in the knowledge that its efforts have been rewarded by such splendid support on the part of the citizens of Dixon and the townships.

The announcement of this important fact will be a great satisfaction to Dixon people. It means that Dixon has done her duty promptly.

LEE CO. MAN TO GO WEDNESDAY

The local board of Lee county this morning received notice to send its contingent to the colored regiment of the national army at Camp Grant on the Sterling passenger Wednesday morning, October 31. Lee county's quota consists only of Robert Martin Peniston.

(Special to the Telegraph.) Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 24.—Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, speaking at the Liberty Day celebration here today, said in part:

After traversing thirty states in every section of the country, not in the first Liberty Bond campaign, but in this campaign, I feel competent to say that if there are those who believe America is not awake, that the spirit of democracy and of patriotism is not regnant in this island, they are very badly mistaken. The American people know that they are in a great war for self preservation, for the protection of their vital rights, as well as for the vindication of the democratic principle throughout the world.

It is very true that we fight for altruistic purposes. We fight for our ideals. It is true, also, that we fight for no selfish end. We seek no territory that belongs to another nation. We seek not to conquer any other peoples, and make them subjects of this great republic. But, while we are fighting for these ideals, and it is to restore them as often as possible, America fights for something more proximate than that—certain essential rights of people rights that involve their life, and the integrity of their institutions, rights which have been hanged and rights which have been disregarded by the greatest military despot of all times.

Kaiser First Broke Rule.

Before this war broke out in Europe, it had been recognized everywhere throughout the civilized world that no merchant ship should be sunk by an enemy war vessel, unless the lives of the passengers, the unarmed and defenseless men, women and children, had first been secured. So inflexible is that rule, that it has never been disregarded by any civilized nation, until the German Kaiser essayed to violate it.

Why is the rule so immutable? Why is it that an infraction of it shocks humanity? I can illustrate it better by bringing it home to you in this way. Suppose (and I am going to suppose a very impossible case) that a German army had successfully invaded the United States and had captured an American city.

It is undoubtedly true that within the past three years this nation was

SHOW YOUR LOVE FOR YOUR NATIVE LAND BY MARCHING IN BIG PARADE

Those who are not in their places by that hour will lose the chance to show publicly that they think America the greatest country on earth and that they are ready to support their country with the dollars.

FRENCH SMASH LINE.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) Reports today indicated that the smashing attack by the French yesterday against the Germans along a six-mile front northeast of Soissons netted extremely important gains from the German crown prince. The sudden blow also brought the French 3,000 prisoners and twenty-four heavy and field guns. General Petain pushed toward Laon, the southern extremity of the Hindenburg line, and an important railway center where the French advanced two and one-fifth miles.

To the German crown prince the blow may prove the most severe he has suffered since Verdun.

General Petain's masterly stroke weakens the German line northward to the forest of St. Cobain.

EVERY COMMUNITY DEMONSTRATES NOW

FLOOD OF DOLLARS SWEEPS INTO U. S. TREASURY ON LIBERTY DAY.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Not a community in the United States so far as the Liberty Loan managers can learn, has failed to respond to the call for today's big drives, parades, speeches, patriotic demonstrations, and bond buying are the order from coast to coast.

A flood of dollars the like of which has never swept in upon the treasury before, officials predicted for today.

Liberty Day dawned with less than half the big loan taken. Liberal estimates from all reserve districts indicated that $2,465,000,000 had been subscribed to date.

HOW MUCH DOES YOUR COUNTRY MEAN TO YOU?

UT the question straight up to yourself in these hours when your country is fighting to make the world safe for democracy—safe for your country, your home and you.

You answer in your subscription to the Second Liberty Loan. By the ready warmth of your response, you measure the depth of your love for your country, and your gratitude for the comforts and advantages its democracy gives you.

You measure them not in the size of the bonds you buy, but in the sacrifice you make to buy them.

Picture what your life would be in a country bereft of freedom; picture what you might be, had it not been for the opportunities our land of liberty gave you; picture the future of your child in the grip of the iron fist; and put the question to your mind, heart and soul, and sum up what your country means to you in sentiment and self-interest; for all that strikes at your country strikes at you and your home.

Then proclaim your answer in the buying of ALL the U. S. Government Liberty Bonds you can.

of the quarries of Montparnasse, which had been partly crushed by our big shells.

Dashes On to Heights

"On the left our progress was continued with the same success, the villages of Alemant and Vandesson remaining in our power, while on the right our troops carried their line to the heights dominating Pargny-Filain.

"Finally, in the center, our troops drove fresh enemy reserves helter-skelter and captured, in a violent struggle, the village of Chavignon. At this point our advance reached a depth of three and a half kilometers (about two and a fifth miles).

Enemy Losses Heavy

"The enemy losses in the course of the day were large, in addition to those inflicted on him by our artillery preparation. The number of prisoners counted up to the present exceeds 7,500. In the enormous amount of material captured we have counted 25 heavy field cannon.

"Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, our aviators carried out with undaunted the missions imposed upon them their machines flying 50 meters (54 1/3 yards) above the lines."

British Head Off Foe

London, Oct. 24.—Field Marshal Haig's report from the Flanders front says:

"In addition to the hostile attack reported in this morning's communiqué, the enemy delivered two other counter-attacks yesterday evening. In one case the enemy's troops attempted to advance along the line of the Westroosebeke Poelcapelle road, but when some 200 yards from our new positions they were engaged by our infantry with rifle and machine gun fire and beaten off with loss. As the survivors endeavored to withdraw they were caught by our artillery barrage and again suffered heavily.

"The second attack was delivered immediately north of the Ypres-Staden railway in considerable strength. Here also the enemy's troops were met by rifle and machine gun fire and driven off.

"Early this morning another hostile attack against our positions in the Houthulst forest, northeast of Veldhoek, was completely repulsed, prisoners being left in our hands. A less powerful attack against one of the fortified farms captured by us yesterday southeast of Poelcapelle was equally unsuccessful.

"During the day the artillery was active on both sides along the battle front in spite of the unfavorable weather."

SORE THROAT, COLDS

QUICKLY RELIEVED BY HAMILTON'S WIZARD OIL.

Sore throat and chest colds should never be neglected. Few people realize how often they result in rheumatism, tonsillitis, diphtheria, pneumonia and consumption. Hamlin's Wizard Oil is a safe and effective treatment. It contains no chloroform or other dangerous drugs, but is composed of the most healing, penetrating oils. Used as a gargle for sore throat, it brings quick relief. Rubbed on the chest it will often loosen up a hard, deep seated cold in one night.

Wizard Oil is a good dependable preparation to keep in the medicine chest for first aid when the doctor may be far away. as much interest in the county at large as anyone in the county, now offer their services in the interests of bringing Lee County's total sales up to her quota, which is $1,278,900, or a little more than a million and a quarter dollars.

County Is Behind.

On the other hand, the county organization is disappointed in the response it is getting from the country townships, and say that while many farmers are doing their share and buying bonds, the average bond sales in the country are so much lower than those in the towns that Lee County is going to be woefully behind in its quota unless something is done at once.

Fifty Per Cent.

After examining figures on county bond sales, it was announced this morning that, even including Dixon, Wyoming and Alto, the three townships that have filled their quotas, the county as a unit has not bought fifty per cent of the bonds which were allotted to us.

A committee of Dixon men, who will start work in the country at once, held a meeting this afternoon.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Today, Liberty day by proclamation of President Wilson, the nation faces the test of determining whether the second Liberty loan of 1917 shall roll up an overwhelming success.

It faces the greatest day of the campaign, with not more than half of the $5,000,000,000 hoped for actually subscribed, according to careful estimates compiled by treasury officials last night. Two and one-half billion dollars, they estimate, must be obtained in subscriptions in the four days that remain.

The field force of 2,000,000 workers re-enforced today by speakers, including members of the cabinet, former President Taft, William J. Bryan, Speaker Clark and other nationally known orators.

Secretary McAdoo, telegraphing from Nashville, sounded the keynote of the day in a Liberty day statement issued here.

"All that is needed now to make the Liberty loan an overwhelming success," he said, "is that the people generally in all parts of the nation realize the personal application of the loan appeal. There is still too much of a tendency to believe that the loan will be subscribed easily and without the assistance of the average man and woman."

Other Business at Rest.

Business was nearly at a standstill throughout the nation today except for the sale of Liberty bonds. Designated a national holiday by President Wilson, the day has also been made a holiday by governors of the various states. Business houses and schools were closed; thousands of speakers will deliver addresses and hundreds of thousands of new workers joined for the day the army of 2,000,000 solicitors already in the field.

"Particular efforts are to be put forward," says the treasury department's statement, "to obtain further subscriptions from farmers in the South and parts of the middle West. As was the case a week ago, the rural communities in those sections are making the weakest showings of any in the country."

"Returns from all federal reserve districts show that at the beginning of business Tuesday subscriptions of $1,501,392,150 had been officially reported to them. This represents subscriptions upon which the first payment of 2 per cent has been deposited in banks reporting to the reserve banks."

$2,500,000,000 Indicated.

"Unofficial figures indicate that an estimate of $2,500,000,000 for all sales appears to be conservative."

"Briefly stated, then, the situation is that the $3,000,000,000 minimum quota set for the loan at the outset of the campaign on October 1 will be passed today, if Liberty day subscriptions come up to conservative expectations. They may carry the total beyond that point."

"The maximum total of $5,000,000,000 is far distant, however. To attain it by the close of the sale Saturday will be a feat worthy of the best mettle."

"Reports of maximum quotas having been passed in various parts of the country began to arrive today."

"New York wires that its sales will pass the billion-dollar mark today."

"The signal for the lighting of Liberty fires throughout the country was given when Mrs. W. G. McAdoo, chairman of the woman's Liberty loan committee, lighted a bonfire at the Washington monument."

"She used a candelabrum which once belonged to Napoleon Bonaparte, containing a trench candle made in Quebec. The faggots are of wood made from historic places in many states."

RUSHES TROOPS TO AID ITALY

French and British Infantry and Artillery Cross the Alps.

Washington, Oct. 24.—French and British re-enforcements are arriving daily at the Italian front, official Rome cables stated. The troop movement is being made by train from France. Large quantities of munitions and many artillery battalions accompany the infantry.

New York, Oct. 24.—Ten years' imprisonment at hard labor, forfeiture of pay and all allowances, and dishonorable discharge from the army were the penalties inflicted by a court-martial at Camp Mills, L. I., a few days ago upon two Alabama privates who deserted from the One Hundred and Sixty-seventh Infantry (old Forty-eighth Alabama), which is part of the Rainbow division. The men, who both came from Montgomery, Ala., were Paul S. Gooden of Company M and Richard Harris of headquarters company. Each is twenty-three years old. They are now in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., beginning their long terms. They were taken there in irons last Thursday.

The peaceful quiet of the monster bulls, the watchful solicitude of the mother cows, the awkward playfulness of the calves, rested, interested and amused Korak. The life of the huge beast took his mind temporarily from his own grief. He came to love them as he loved not even the great apes, and there was one gigantic tusker in particular of which he was very fond—the lord of the herd, a savage beast that was wont to charge a stranger upon the slightest provocation or upon no provocation whatsoever.

And to Korak this mountain of destruction was as docile and affectionate as a lapdog.

He came when Korak called. He wound his trunk about the ape man's body and lifted him to his broad neck in response to a gesture, and there would Korak lie at full length, kicking his toes affectionately into the thick hide and brushing the flies from about the tender ears of his colossal chum with a leafy branch torn by Tantor from a nearby tree.

And all the while Meriem was scarce a hundred miles away!

CHAPTER XI.

A Lion and a Lamb.

To Meriem, in her new home, the days passed quickly. At first she was all anxiety to be off into the jungle searching for her Korak.

Bwana, as she insisted upon calling her benefactor, dissuaded her from making the attempt at once by dispatching a head man with a party of blacks to Kovudoo's village, with instructions to learn from the old savage how he came into possession of the white girl and as much of her antecedents as might be culled from the black chieftain. Bwana particularly charged his head man with the duty of questioning Kovudoo relative to the strange character whom the girl called Korak and of searching for the ape man if he found the slightest evidence upon which to ground a belief in the existence of such an individual.

The white man's wife, whom Meriem had christened "My Dear," from having first heard her thus addressed by Bwana, took not only a deep interest in the little jungle wifl because of her forlorn and friendless state, but grew to love her as well for her sunny disposition and natural charm of temperament. And Meriem, similarly impressed by like attributes in the gentle, cultured woman, reciprocated the other's regard and affection.

And so the days flew by while Meriem waited the return of the head man and his party from the country of Kovudoo. They were short days, for into them were crowded many hours of insidious instruction of the unlettered child by the lonely woman.

She commenced at once to teach the girl English without forcing it upon her as a task. She variegated the instruction with lessons in sewing and deportment, nor once did she let Meriem guess that it was not all play. Nor was this difficult, since the girl was avid to learn.

Then there were pretty dresses to be made to take the place of the single leopard skin, and in this she found the child as responsive and enthusiastic as any civilized miss of her acquaintance.

A month passed before the head man returned, a month that had transformed the savage, little, half-naked Mangani into a daintily frocked girl of at least outward civilization. Meriem had progressed rapidly with the intricacies of the English language, for Bwana and My Dear persistently refused to speak Arabic from the time they had decided that Meriem must learn English, which had been a day or two after her introduction into their home.

But docile as Meriem was in these matters, there was one thing that she insisted on during her entire stay with the kind white folk, and that was her personal freedom to make excursions into the jungle, attired very much as she had been when with Korak, when he was telling her stories of London and Paris, of balls and banquets, of the wonderful women and their wonderful gowns, of the pleasures and pastimes of the rich and powerful.

Meriem was entranced. His tales were like fairy stories to this little jungle maid. The Hon. Morison looked large and wonderful and magnificent in her mind's eye. He fascinated ever she chose. Bwana and My Dear got used in time to finding her room empty and to have her turn up hours later, flushed and radiant, after a wild romp through the trees and jungle.

Thus it was that, despite the civilized boots she wore and the confining feminine garb, the soles of her hard little feet and the pains of her capable hands remained exceedingly serviceable, nor did her grace and agility suffer.

The report of the head man plunged Meriem into a period of despondency, for he had found the village of Kovudoo deserted, nor, search as he would, could he discover a single native anywhere in the vicinity. For some time he had camped near the village, spending the days in a systematic search of the environs for traces of Meriem's Korak. But in this quest, too, he had failed. He had seen neither apes nor ape man.

Meriem at first insisted upon setting forth herself in search of Korak, but Bwana prevailed upon her to wait. He would go, he assured her, as soon as he could find the time and at last Meriem consented to abide by his wishes. But it was months before she ceased to mourn almost hourly for her Korak.

It was about this time that a runner brought a letter that, when she learned the contents, filled Meriem with excitement. Visitors were coming! A number of English ladies and gentlemen had accepted My Dear's invitation to spend a month of hunting and exploring with them.

She did not reply. She did not know what to say. She knew nothing of love. She had never given it a thought. But she did know that it was very nice to be loved, whatever it meant. It was nice to have people kind to one. She had known so little of kindness or affection.

"Tell me," he said, "that you return my love."

His lips came steadily closer to hers. They had almost touched when a vision of Korak sprang like a miracle before her eyes. She saw Korak's face close to hers, she felt his lips against her lips, and then for the first time she guessed what love meant.

She drew away gently.

"I am not sure," she said, "that I love you. Let us wait. There is plenty of time. I am too young to marry yet, and I am not sure that I should be happy in London or Paris. They rather frightened me."

She was not sure that she loved him! That came rather in the nature of a shock to the Hon. Morison's vanity. It seemed incredible that this little barbarian should have any doubt whatever as to the desirability of the Hon. Morison Baynes.

He glanced down at the girl's profile. It was bathed in the silvery light of the great tropic moon. She was most alluring.

Meriem rose. The vision of Korak was still before her.

"Good night," she said. "It is almost too beautiful to leave." She waved her hand in a comprehensive gesture which took in the starry heavens, the great moon, the broad, silvery plain and the dense shadows in the distance that marked the jungle. "Oh, how I love it!"

"You would love London more," he said earnestly. "And London would love you. You would be a famous beauty in any capital of Europe. You would have the world at your feet, Meriem."

"Good night," she repeated, and left him.

N. ROMANOFF PLAYS WHIST

Spends Much Time Over His Old-Time Diversion.

According to a Petrograd dispatch, Nicholas Romanoff, the deposed Russian emperor, passes a great deal of his time in playing whist, of which he is very fond. In prewar times whist was one of the most popular court diversions in Russia, and the emperor had a special de luxe card which was made for his exclusive use.

Over 1,200 packs of these imperial cards were used every year, and they cost the Russian government about 87 a pack, being made of the finest linen rags with a watermark of the imperial crown and eagle.

The Hon. Morison Baynes found Meriem a most beautiful and charming companion. He was delighted with her from the first, particularly so, it is possible, because he had not thought to find companionship of this sort upon the African estate of his London friends. They were together a great deal, as they were the only unmarried couple in the little company.

Meriem, entirely unaccustomed to the companionship of such as Baynes, was fascinated by him. His tales of the great, gay cities with which he was familiar filled her with admiration and with wonder. If the Hon. Morison always shone to advantage in these narratives, Meriem saw in that fact but a natural consequence to his presence upon the scene of his story. Wherever Morison might be he must be a hero. So thought the girl.

With the actual presence and companionship of the young Englishman the image of Korak became less real. Where before it had been an actuality to her, she now realized that Korak was but a memory. To that memory she still was loyal. But what weight has a memory in the presence of a fascinating reality?

And presently she dissolved and merged into those of another, and the figure of a tanned, half-naked Tarzan became a khaki-clothed and sturdy Englishman astride a hunting pony.

The Hon. Morison Baynes was sitting with Meriem upon the veranda one evening after the others had retired. Earlier they had been playing tennis, a game in which the Hon. Morison shone to advantage, as, in truth, he did in most all manner sports.

Reason for Self-Confidence.

Self-confidence is really based primarily upon one's consciousness of his own powers or of his deficiencies. A clear understanding of this fact will help to simplify the problem. It is perfectly clear, for instance, that the man who is poorly educated, who has neglected his opportunities, who is uneducated, who lacks self-restraint, who is truly incompetent in practically all directions, and who is at the same time conscious of his deficiencies, cannot expect to enjoy any degree of self-confidence.—Physical Culture.

Spends Much Time Over His Old-Time Diversion.

According to a Petrograd dispatch, Nicholas Romanoff, the deposed Russian emperor, passes a great deal of his time in playing whist, of which he is very fond. In prewar times whist was one of the most popular court diversions in Russia, and the emperor had a special de luxe card which was made for his exclusive use.

Over 1,200 packs of these imperial cards were used every year, and they cost the Russian government about 87 a pack, being made of the finest linen rags with a watermark of the imperial crown and eagle.

The Hon. Morison Baynes found Meriem a most beautiful and charming companion. He was delighted with her from the first, particularly so, it is possible, because he had not thought to find companionship of this sort upon the African estate of his London friends. They were together a great deal, as they were the only unmarried couple in the little company.

Meriem, entirely unaccustomed to the companionship of such as Baynes, was fascinated by him. His tales of the great, gay cities with which he was familiar filled her with admiration and with wonder. If the Hon. Morison always shone to advantage in these narratives, Meriem saw in that fact but a natural consequence to his presence upon the scene of his story. Wherever Morison might be he must be a hero. So thought the girl.

With the actual presence and companionship of the young Englishman the image of Korak became less real. Where before it had been an actuality to her, she now realized that Korak was but a memory. To that memory she still was loyal. But what weight has a memory in the presence of a fascinating reality?

And presently she dissolved and merged into those of another, and the figure of a tanned, half-naked Tarzan became a khaki-clothed and sturdy Englishman astride a hunting pony.

The Hon. Morison Baynes was sitting with Meriem upon the veranda one evening after the others had retired. Earlier they had been playing tennis, a game in which the Hon. Morison shone to advantage, as, in truth, he did in most all manner sports.

HEY say, who have come back from Over There, that at night the troubled earth between the lines is carpeted with pain. They say that Death rides whistling in every wind, and that the very mists are charged with awful torment. They say that of all things spent and squandered there young human life is held least dear. It is not the pleasantest prospect for those of us who yet can feel upon our lips the pressure of our mothers' good-by kiss.  But, please God, our love of life is not so prized as love of right. In this renaissance of our country's valor, we who will edge the wedge of her assault make calm acceptance of its hazards. For us the steel-swept trench, the stiffening cold—weariness, hardship, worse. For you for whom we go, you millions safe at home—what for you?  We shall need food. We shall need care. We shall need clothes for our bodies and weapons for our hands. We shall need terribly and without failure supplies and equipment in a stream that is constant and never-ending. From you who are our resource and reliance, who are the heart and hope of that humanity for which we smite and strive, must come these things. Buy your country's bonds. Buy them, today!  The United States Government Bonds of the Second Liberty Loan of 1917 are investment made safe for the people. They are in the highest possible sense a security of the people, by the people, for the people. They can be had in denominations so low and on such terms that virtually every citizen of this nation may share in the benefits they bring and the purposes they serve. They are today the safest possible investment in the world.  Buy your country's bonds. Buy them, as the mainspring of our holy endeavor. As your duty to the cradle and your fealty to the tomb, buy them. Buy them, today!

M'ADOO'S FINE SPEECH

frequently on the verge of war, because of those infractions of the Kaiser, those aggressions upon our rights. But each time our great, peace-loving president, with an earnest desire to maintain peace and to strictly observe the obligations of neutrality, which we had always observed upon our part, first demanded that these aggressions upon our rights be stopped. And each time the Kaiser promised that he would not repeat this offense, and just as frequently as he made the promises, he disregarded them. What else could be expected of a nation that would tear up a treaty with Belgium and denounce it as a mere scrap of paper?

Kaiser's Ultimatum.

But the climax came when on the 31st day of January last, we received notice from the Kaiser that on and after that date, no American ship and no American citizen should be permitted to enter a zone of the high seas about five hundred miles in width, surrounding the great nations of Britain, Belgium, France and Italy. He undertook to say to America that she should not sail her ships upon the high seas. One other nation told us that in eighteen hundred and twelve, what was the answer? Weak as we were at that time, and powerful as the nation was which then challenged our rights, we went to war and vindicated America's right to the freedom of the seas. We vindicated America's right to the freedom of the seas, a right we have maintained in spite of this time, and a right we never intend to surrender at the order of any alien despot. I care not under what flag he claims to sail.

Why is that right so essential to America's life and security as a nation? It is because we have always produced more than we can consume at home. And the very prosperity of our people, their very life, in fact, depends upon their ability at all times to sell that surplus in the open markets of the world. Unless we have the unrestricted and un molested freedom of the seas in the peaceful pursuit of commerce, there would be ruin in this land, from one end to the other. This nation could never be prosperous without it.

Kaiser's Purpose

It is perfectly clear what the Kaiser's purpose was. He had been led to believe by disloyal people in this country that America would never fight, that we were a material people, that any transgressions of our rights would be met only by protests, that he could go as far as he pleased. And so he determined that he would put America to this supreme test, and he has gotten an answer he never expected. He expected a craven submission, and he knew that if we gave that, there would be a weakening of the economic situation in America, and discord and discontent among its people which would serve the end in view. He would accomplish, if we had submitted, to that order, by one stroke of his pen in his palace in Berlin, more destruction upon American farms, in American factories, and in American business houses and to American interests all over the land than he could accomplish with all the armies and navies of the German empire.

We have in training now in this country a magnificent army of the finest manhood of this nation. I was at Camp Lewis, Washington, the other day, where I had the privilege of speaking to thirty-five thousand of them assembled on the parade grounds. It was a thrilling sight, and it made my heart swell with renewed pride to be an American citizen. There were marshalled the hosts of democracy, the sons of farmers, the sons of merchants, the sons of lawyers, the sons of ministers, the sons of laboring men, the sons of every kind and character of America's citizenship, a truly democratic army, collected from all parts of this country. Every community in this great land has been affected by the selective draft law.

What is the least we can do for these brave young men? We cannot assure them the safety of their principal. It is his life. He does not ask the Government to give him security, he does not ask the Government to guarantee him safety. He expects to die, if necessary. But he has a right to ask the civilian population to do this much for him—to arm him with the best gun that American money and ingenuity can devise, a gun that will shoot faster and further than any gun yet made, and to give him the best bayonet that can be forged by America's skill and brawn—bayonets long enough to reach to Berlin, so that when the supreme moment comes, and he finds himself in the death grapple with an enemy, he will be able to strike a blow for liberty, destroy his enemy and save himself. That is the only chance he has for his life. That is all we can do for him. Isn't he entitled to that? When you think of those glorious fellows who must go out and face death for us, of the sacrifice they have to make, not only of their lives, but in many cases of their health, perhaps impaired forever, or marred forever to such a degree that life will not be very happy for them if they come back—when you think of that, and then think of what is being asked of us who stay at home, what an insignificant thing in comparison we do for them, no matter if we do the utmost in our powers. We can, in a measure, do for them what they are doing for us—we can “fight” at home to produce the things that will make them the stronger for the fight. And so, when you buy a fifty dollar Liberty bond, with your principal safe beyond question, and producing an income, just remember that you are giving some gallant boy the best gun in the world—the only thing that may save his life. Can you do less than that?

This fight must be fought to a finish. The money derived from the
